

It is near the end of the book and death waits on the Grand Vizier Ibrahim. For 400 pages you have watched a great statesman parry the blows of enemies in the court of Suleiman the Magnificent, mightiest of all the Turkish sultans.

But now the Ottoman empire is crumbling, undermined by the Russian woman who had become the sultan's favorite. The word from the harem is that she has persuaded the sultan to break his oath and have the Grand Vizier Ibrahim put to death.

The news is brought to Ibrahim by the book's hero, Michael, the wanderer, who had left his native Finland to take the Arab name el-Hakim and become a devoted agent of the grand vizier. Michael had explained to his master in a happier day:

"Perhaps I love you best for your high aims and motives and for never behaving with deliberate cruelty to anyone. Thanks to you I am persecuted for my faith, be it Christian or Jew. Do you wonder that men hate you, Grand Vizier Ibrahim? But because of these things I love you."

But now Michael warns the grand vizier he is to be killed and urges him to strangle the sultan and put the crown prince on the throne. Ibrahim rejects it, he tells his faithful agent:

"You once said that a man must be loyal to at least one creature on earth. If you, then why not I? Man is greater than statecraft, honor, wealth, and power, though many will not see this. But let us be honest and admit that just as your loyalty to me is no more than loyalty to yourself, so is my loyalty to the sultan nothing but loyalty to a certain poor Ibrahim who sits at his side, trying to persuade himself that he is a true man. The hour of parting is at hand, and we may doff our masks."

So the grand vizier dies, Michael has to get out of Turkey between dusk and dawn, and the Ottoman empire is on the way down.

But you've had a spectacular time following young Michael in his wanderings, the length and breadth of that empire, across Africa, the Middle East, and to the gates of Vienna as the Turks battled their way into Europe in the ceaseless war with the Holy Roman Empire.

For these were the desperate years of the 16th Century when the world was carved up into huge hostile camps, pretty much as it is today. And even then, as today, world politics made strange bedfellows. The Mohammedan Turks, on the East, were allied with Catholic France and Protestant Germany, on the West, against the Holy Roman Empire in the middle (Catholic Austria, Italy and Spain).

You have my assurance that the author, Mika Waltari, is the greatest historical novelist of our day. Native of Helsinki, Finland, Waltari wrote "The Egyptian," which I reviewed in this column about a year ago. "The Egyptian," translated into a dozen languages, is the No. 1 best fiction seller in the world; and "The Wanderer" is its brother.

If Waltari has a message in "The Wanderer" it is the disclosure that peace is as elusive back in the 1500's as it is today. He pictures the Turkish empire as the strong man of the day charged with keeping law and order over the Eastern half of the world. It is a new thought to most of us, who have generally read the story from the Western side.

But the basic idea will be quickly recognized. In each era there is indeed one strong power which more or less holds the fate of the world . . . for a while. The Turkish empire held it in the times of which this book speaks. Later on the burden was passed to the French, and then to the British—and now, unhappily, it's on the backs of Americans.

And yet there is comfort of a sort. Not even in the desperate days of which "The Wanderer" speaks did total conquest finally develop. The end was a draw.

Simmering Feud of MOP Flares Into Public View

Washington, Nov. 28 (AP)—A long-smouldering feud inside the big Missouri Pacific railroad company's financial family has burst into full public view.

Sixty-seven year old Paul J. Neff, a veteran in Mo-Pac service, was summarily fired yesterday as president of the corporation by Col. T. C. Davis, board chairman. This came minutes after Neff had given testimony at an interstate commerce commission hearing on the value of the railroad's common stock. The road has been in bankruptcy litigation since 1933.

Robert R. Young, already a legend in railroading and currently representing a majority of Missouri Pacific's common stock, stood by as Neff was publicly given the pink slip.

But in St. Louis, Guy R. Thompson, acting as trustee for the Missouri Pacific properties—valued in testimony at the hearing at nearly a billion dollars—under authority of the U. S. bankruptcy court there, said Neff will keep on running Mo-Pac as his chief executive officer.

Thompson, in a statement to newsmen, questioned Davis' authority to dismiss Neff as president. However, he asserted that in any case, the choice of operating executives is the responsibility of the trustee—not of the board of directors—and that Neff is in to stay so long as Thompson is in charge as trustee.

Young declined comment on Thompson's statement. So did Davis. But the latter made it clear he will shortly assemble the board to elect and install a successor to Neff in the presidency.

Davis acknowledged that the developments simply made a wide open split out of long-standing differences among board members, the trustee and the latter's operating personnel.

At the core of the matter is a bitter behind-the-scenes struggle between major financial interests for control of the Missouri Pacific system, operating in 11 midwestern and southwestern states.

Eighteen years of litigation in the courts and before the ICC over a reorganization plan to take the road out of its 1933 bankruptcy proceeding have failed to resolve the matter.

At the moment, holders of common stock are spearheading a fight to upset a plan for reorganization approved by the ICC in 1949. The plan would wipe out the current common stock, of which Young's Allegany corporation now owns more than 50 per cent.

AEC Praises Usefulness of Atom Tests

Washington, Nov. 28 (AP)—Chairman Gordon Dean of the atomic energy commission (AEC) said today the atomic weapons tests conducted recently in Nevada proved "very useful" in development of the nation's military might.

Dean's guarded statement to reporters was his first public comment on the latest series of tests, which he indicated has not been concluded. Six explosions have been conducted in the series which started Oct. 22, ranging from what was apparently a baby A-bomb to mountain-shaking weapons.

The commission chairman was asked whether the tests so far had been generally satisfactory and whether they had advanced the building of this country's atomic arsenal.

"Let me put it this way," Dean replied. "I don't think there has been anything in the Nevada shots (tests) that has ever displeased us."

Asked then whether he meant the commission was entirely satisfied with the outcome of the tests, Dean declared:

"Each time we learn something. They have been very useful." He added that "one of the best things that has happened to us" was the creation of what he termed "the continental testing grounds" in Nevada. Most earlier tests were held in the Pacific at Bikini and Eniwetok.

Dean also was asked whether the latest series of Nevada tests had been completed.

He said that rather than answer directly, he preferred to say the commission would announce the conclusion of the tests—when the time comes.

Dean and other members of the commission spent more than two hours behind closed doors at the capitol yesterday with the senate-house committee on defense production.

Senator Maybank (D-SC) the committee chairman, said the session dealt almost entirely with a progress report on construction of a huge H-bomb plant near Aiken, S. C.

The committee's report, made public just before the meeting with the commissioners, said about 17,000 construction workers are employed at the project now, with peak employment of about 52,000 expected next October.

Dean told newsmen, however, that the construction peak probably will be reached by June. He declined to answer questions as to when the plant will be in operation.

The committee report said labor currently is costing $1,250,000 a week at the South Carolina plant. Maybank said congress probably will have to provide an additional $200,000,000 to finance the overall cost of construction through next June. It already has made available $650,000,000.

The report described the H-bomb plant as "probably unprecedented in magnitude, cost, speed of construction and complexity." It added:

"The project is in capable and experienced hands and the interests of the government are being constantly given paramount consideration."

Boyle Accuses Willoughby of Taking Up a Blunderbuss to Hide His Own Blunders

By HAL BOYLE

New York, Nov. 28 (AP)—Some army officers retire gracefully. Others retire like Maj. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby. I am not a chief of intelligence for Gen. Douglas MacArthur. They carry their mental wounds back into civil life.

General Willoughby has a grudge. He is mad at a fair segment of the American press for the coverage of the Korean war.

Sheathing his sword and taking up his pen, he attacks six correspondents, including this writer, and three weekly news magazines in an article in the December issue of "Cosmopolitan."

His general charges against the newsmen are that we spread defeatism, "confused an unhappy public," and had "a marked tendency to smear General MacArthur." He even goes so far as to assert:

"The notion of defeat created an atmosphere of tension, uneasiness, and distrust between Tokyo and Washington. This is believed to have been the major cause of the MacArthur-Truman split."

I do not know who believes this, unless it is General Willoughby himself. And I don't even really believe he does, except on rainy days.

The general accuses the six war reporters of being "often inaccurate, biased, prejudiced, petulant, x x x Their reporting furnished aid and comfort to the enemy."

Perhaps Willoughby, now being free of military duties, ought to get a job as a cub reporter on a newspaper and find out what the function of a free press is in a democracy. It is this: To find out the truth—and then print it.

The duty of a war reporter on the battlefield isn't to gloss over disaster or hide the mistakes of his top brass. It isn't his duty to bawl someone before the altar of a false star, self-inflating ego. It is his duty to find out what is happening. That is what the soldiers themselves want him to do. His only restriction is this—never to write anything that will threaten the actual combat security of the troops. My own feeling is that General Willoughby has taken up a blunderbuss against the press to hide his own blunders.

It was—in the opinion of a number of trained war correspondents on the scene—the reporting of General Willoughby himself that gave "aid and comfort to the enemy" and let down General MacArthur.

As top intelligence officer it was his job to give MacArthur an estimate of the enemy's capability under any condition. In the case of the Chinese Reds the Tokyo head-

Fulbright Sees India, Japan as Leaders in Asia

Washington, Nov. 28 (AP)—Senator Fulbright (D-Ark.) said today he sees Japan and India as rivals for recognition as the leader of Asia in the years ahead.

He said the rivalry "is very real" and represents an international problem which other nations should approach with caution.

Fulbright, a member of the senate foreign relations committee, did not predict the outcome. But he did say he considers "India's disposition to cooperate" in world affairs and her internal problems will handicap her bid.

"India," he said, "has so many internal problems that she is hard pressed to maintain orderly government."

"The Nationalist opposition to allowing foreign investments which her economy needs is an obstacle. She desperately needs to raise her economy to some reasonable standard and improve her primitive agricultural resources."

Fulbright said his reference to "disposition not to cooperate" stemmed from her refusal to participate in the Japanese peace treaty conference and certain of her other stands on East-West problems.

Fulbright said Japan also "has a terrible economic problem" of recovering from World War II under cold war conditions. These, he said, have cut off her normal trade with Communist China and posed major difficulties to finding outlets for her commerce.

Japan, he said, has ingenuity and ambition to carry her ahead of the field as a leader of Asian countries in the next several years, but he said he did not predict the long-range outcome of rivalry with India.

Badman Cook Sentenced to Death

El Centro, Calif., Nov. 28 (AP)—Desperado William E. Cook came to the end of his trail of lawlessness in California today as he was sentenced to death for the murder of Robert H. Dewey, a Seattle oil salesman.

Superior Judge Lurray Mouser can impose the death penalty or sentence the 23-year-old killer of six persons to life imprisonment. Unless he decrees the gas chamber for Cook, however, there is little likelihood the federal government will surrender the custody of the Joplin Mo. dishwasher.

Cook is under sentence of 200 years in the federal prison at Alcatraz, and he was brought here for trial after representations had been made to the U. S. attorney general that the full ends of justice had not been served when Cook escaped the death penalty in Oklahoma for the killing of the five members of the Carl Mouser family last January.

Cook not only had killed Dewey in California, Jan. 6, but he had kidnapped a sheriff's deputy at Blythe, Calif., and tied him up, robbed him and left him in the desert. The squat, bull-necked badman also had kidnapped and held captive for eight days in Mexico two El Centro men, Forrest Dameron and James Burke.

Presumably, Willoughby soured his estimate to his chief. That was his job.

Forty days later the U. N. launched its "win-the-war" offensive. On that day—Nov. 24—Tokyo headquarters intelligence still put the total Chinese and North Korean enemy in Korea at only 100,000 men.

It was an extremely costly miscalculation. Tremendous numbers of waiting Chinese Reds rose up, split the Allied drive and forced a long withdrawal.

On Dec. 2—eight days after the attack began—MacArthur estimated the enemy at 600,000 men, including 500,000 Chinese and 100,000 North Koreans.

Where did this vast force mushroom from? Why did Allied intelligence have no inkling of it? It should have.

Who really let MacArthur down in the lost battle near the Yalu—a few newspapermen or his own chief of intelligence?

General Willoughby's argument is with history, not with newsmen carrying out their responsibility to the American public. To report the major mistakes of a major general is no criticism of the American army, as such. An army is many men, not one.

Even in this odd world, I doubt if Willoughby will be able to prove a man can whitewash himself by dabbling the press with a worn tar brush. Surely he must always remember he didn't know what he ought to have known when 100,000 American soldiers marched toward anguish and ambush, hopeful that his wrong intelligence was right.

Was it only a year ago? Has the general forgotten already? The men who marched haven't.

Ground Fights Completely Halted in Korea

Seoul, Korea, Nov. 28 (AP)—Field dispatches based on Allied officers' reports said ground fighting in Korea came to a complete stop today, with only the official announcement lacking to proclaim a cease-fire.

Troops of the United Nations, last night and early today, received orders not to fire at the enemy unless he attacked, field dispatches said.

By mid-afternoon, apparently well aware of the gentlemen's agreement, Chinese soldiers played volleyball in full view of non-shooting American troops.

When darkness fell, the Reds abandoned their 18-month blackout and the twinkling of Communist bonfires and the glow of cigarettes marked out the silent 145-mile front.

AP Correspondent Milo Farnett reported from the western front that he had seen an order from U. S. Eighth Army headquarters to stop fighting.

Eighth Army headquarters denied that it issued the order. Farnett said the Allies stopped fighting immediately when the order was received.

Only a few rounds of Red artillery, possibly from uninformed gunners, broke the unnatural stillness.

Patrols roamed the quiet front under orders to take no offensive action. And in many cases they made no contact.

Slavs May Free Catholic Bishop

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 28 (AP)—Roman Catholic Archbishop Aloysius Stepinac may be freed from his Yugoslav prison by Christmas, Premier Marshal Tito indicated last night.

The 53-year-old prelate was sentenced five years ago to a 16-year prison term after being convicted of "wartime collaboration with the Germans."

Tito did not specifically say the archbishop will be released, but wrote: "I am going to tell you we will solve the question of Stepinac, even without the consent of the Vatican, within one month."

The archbishop was offered freedom several months ago if he would agree to leave the country. This offer was rejected by the Vatican, which still considers Stepinac spiritual head of Yugoslavia's seven million Catholics.

Tito made his statement in Borba, organ of the Yugoslav Communist party. It was a reply to a letter from Drew Pearson, American newspaper columnist.

Tito did not say whether the archbishop would receive a pardon or parole, or whether he would be exiled from Yugoslavia.

But, Tito wrote, "It is clear that he cannot in our country fulfill his function as a high church leader."

The Yugoslav leader wrote Pearson that the Vatican "did not wish Stepinac to come out of prison, but (wanted) to make a martyr of him."

He insisted that the archbishop has lacked for nothing during his imprisonment.

Tito said many American visitors to Yugoslavia have been interested in Stepinac's case. He asked how Americans would react to someone who helped an occupying enemy and said: "I do not ask a reply, because I am deeply convinced that they would be disappointed."

Newsmen Slap Black, Accuse Willoughby

New York, Nov. 28 (AP)—Six newsmen vigorously deny charges by a former aide of Gen. Douglas MacArthur that they filed "inaccurate, biased and prejudiced" reports on the Korean war.

The aide, retired Maj. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, charges that their writings gave aid and comfort to the Communists. Willoughby was MacArthur's chief of intelligence.

Bigart, cabling from Paris, said his criticisms had been directed against MacArthur and Willoughby, not the army as such. He replied:

"General MacArthur and his light little circle of advisers have never been able to stomach criticism, whether from a war correspondent or the president of the United States. In an attempt to silence criticism, they have adopted the line that anyone who questions their judgment is 'inaccurate, biased, prejudiced and petulant,' and that any criticism of them involves some sort of slur on the whole army."

Drew Pearson made the same distinction in a statement which read:

"Gen. Willoughby is still smarting from my account of how he immigrated to the U. S. after being forced to flee a Prussian military school and how he continued to practice Prussian swagger methods in the U. S. army. He also adds in the fact that it was his ignorance of the fact that it was his faculty intelligence, not the secret division's, which I criticized in the Yalu river advance. If Willoughby's intelligence had been more accurate, the division never would have got in the position where it was forced to retreat."

Boyle said American intelligence in Korea, for which Willoughby was responsible, was "tragically bad." He said:

"The general's job was to obtain information about the Chinese and to evaluate it. I thought then, and I still think, that our intelligence was tragically bad. Gen. Willoughby, naturally, feels otherwise. In this case, the events give the answer—the troops ran into a complete surprise, and were decisively beaten back. Generalities about bias and prejudice cannot outweigh the hard fact of defeat in the cold statistics of losses. It was not 'bias and prejudice' that routed the army back across thousands of square miles of lost ground."

War correspondents on the front in analyzing the causes of the defeat, mainly blamed American intelligence. They said Willoughby had reported only 60,000 to 80,000 Chinese troops in Korea, whereas actually some 300,000 hit the U. N. army.

In a dispatch dated Nov. 27, which the magazine article quoted, Boyle asked:

"Why didn't the American command know the enemy's strength?"

Willoughby's article replied that his intelligence had furnished the information on an enemy strength of "The presence of 11 Chinese corps or 33 divisions" along the Yalu was known and had been reported to Washington."

Boyle also asked: "Why was enemy able unerringly to place weak spots in the U. N. line, the Allied attackers were unable even to locate with certainty general areas where the Reds concentrated their strength?"

Willoughby's reply says "refugees," filtering through the information. As to U. N. efforts to obtain behind-the-lines information, he said: "The U. N. forces, in all the conventional tricks—reconnaissance, secret agents, etc. However, one does not improvise such services over the Far East command zone."

The Far East command zone previously been responsible for Korea and Manchuria."

Boyle's Nov. 28 dispatch read:

10 Cars Leave Track, Only One Injured

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 28 (AP)—The last seven cars of a 10-car New York Central Express lurched from the rails at 75 miles an hour early today, but remained upright. Only one person—a crewman—was hurt.

The Easterner, bound from Cleveland to New York, was halted by automatic emergency brakes near Mayesant, Columbia county, 10 miles south of Albany, at 1:30 a.m. The express apparently hit a defective rail.

The 86 passengers aboard—36 of them in the train's two sleepers—remained calm. One Pullman passenger slept through the derailment. Outside, the temperature was 12 above.

The wreck blocked the central main line between Albany and Poughkeepsie. The line is double-tracked at the scene.

Two sleepers, two coaches and three mail and baggage cars left the rails. The last car—a Pullman—was yanked loose from its couplings and skidded onto the north-bound track. The others remained connected, only a few inches off the rails.

Anthony Piccano of Queens Village, L. I., a conductor, said: "It was a miracle nobody was killed or injured seriously."

The engineer, Herman Beaupre of Albany, said the train was moving

'She Shoulda Said No,' New Hit, Showing as Prevue at Saenger Tonight 11:30

Hallmark's sizzling story and startling screen expose of present-day "teen-age" scandals, "She Shoulda Said No," will be exhibited here, 11:30, from the nation's headlines and based on unvarnished truths, this new movie is designed to awaken citizenry to the pressing problems faced today in coping with the controlling of its youth.

Plans of soft-spoken and weak-kneed individuals to keep their matters covered up, to keep their names and carrying on of modern-day "wildcats" out of the limelight and public spotlights have been brushed aside by America's most fearless producer, Kroger Babb.

"No punches are pulled" in bringing to light this daring story of a beautiful, but dumb, Kansas girl whose ignorance made her the nation's No. 1 victim of big city night life.

Because it tells the truth... and nothing but the truth, parents as well as government officials everywhere have given this enlightening picture their kiss of approval.

"How bad can a good girl get?" is the question formed on everyone's lips as this new, blazing, startling feature unfolds. With unbelievable realism is depicted step by step the stages of night life and wayward abandon leading to that final, but fatal mistake.

"She Shoulda Said No" features an all-star Hollywood cast, including big-time names known by every movie goer. Because, however, of the extra-ordinary subject matter contained in this amazing motion picture, theatres are prohibited from exploiting names of cast.

This new Hallmark roadshow attraction is in wild demand among exhibitors from coast-to-coast. And well it should be, for seldom does a picture reach the American screen that contains such a vivid message.

Beaupre said he did not know at first why the train had stopped. He said the railroad allowed a speed of 80 miles an hour at that point.

Steam heat remained on in all the derailed cars except the last sleeper. Many of the passengers returned to their berths and seats to await the arrival of the relief train.

Cold Lingers Over Nation

By The Associated Press

There was a warning trend in the central and western parts of the country today but it was cold in most of the East and in northern states.

The northern New England region got the coldest blasts with temperatures near zero in some areas. Readings in northern New England and interior of New York remained below freezing yesterday.

The cold air dipped into the South and temperatures below freezing in some sections. The cold air came in from the north, and it was 25 below in Nashville, Tenn., and 28 below in Richmond, Va. At the same time it was 4 above in Burlington, Vt., 17 in Syracuse, N. Y., 17 in Boston, 29 in Philadelphia and 23 in New York City. Miami reported a high of 60.

Early weather was reported in most of the country. Rain fell in the Pacific Northwest and northern Florida. There was rain or snow in the Lake Superior region.

Dixie Downs Petitions Are Checked

West Memphis, Nov. 28 (AP)—Dixie Downs sponsors today checked over their petitions calling for a special election to decide whether a race track can be built near West Memphis.

Officials of the corporation maintained a "no comment" silence on the question of when the petitions will be filed with the Circuit court clerk in Marion.

Franchise for the track was granted recently by the Arkansas Racing commission with the provision that voters in Crittenden county must first approve.

While waiting for the petitions to be filed, the anti-race track league stepped up its fight. A newly organized branch in nearby Tyrone township last night resolved to oppose the track—and all forms of gambling in any part of Arkansas.

Earlier, the Earle unit of the league adopted a resolution opposing any track contributions to the new Crittenden Memorial hospital, or any other benevolent organizations.

The move resulted from Sunday's statement by the Rev. Russell Clubb that Dixie Downs would offer to share part of its receipts to help finance the non-profit, 100-bed hospital.

Clubb said the move was nothing more than a "bribe" to the voters.

Religious leaders of the league were organizing a corps of churchmen and women to canvass for "no" votes in the coming election.

In Little Rock, the governor's executive secretary, Henry Woods, said he had received no answers to the governor's request that members of the state racing commission resign.

Gov. Sid McMath asked their resignations when the commission approved the race track franchise over his opposition. He cannot force them to step down.

Asked if he thought commission members would stick for the remainder of their terms, Woods said, "It looks that away."

Soviet Bloc Awaits Orders From Moscow

Paris, Nov. 27 (AP)—The Soviet bloc remained silent today, possibly awaiting Moscow's decision on proposed secret disarmament discussions while the western bloc appeared agreed that such talks would be useful in easing international tensions.

The United States was expected to press for a time limit on any secret disarmament discussions, which might result from the proposal of the Arab League and the United Nations meeting here to take the arms debate off the world soap box and put it behind closed doors.

The general assembly's political committee was to continue its discussion today of the eastern proposal for a foolproof disarmament plan, and it seemed likely that the conclusion of the secret talk proposal might come before the committee tomorrow.

Elsewhere in the U.N.:

1. The United States denied Soviet charges that the American mutual security act constituted aggression against the U.S.S.R. in the form of fostering subversive activities. The U.S. said the only aim of the act was to aid refugees from behind the Iron Curtain. The U.S. reply was in a statement by Rep. Mike J. Mansfield (D-Mont.) and Rep. John M. Vorys (R-Ohio), members of the house foreign affairs committee and of the U.S. delegation in Paris.

2. The United States strongly supported Italian U. N. membership. Vorys, in the trusteeship committee, supported a French resolution calling on the assembly to urge security council action on Italy's application. Previous Italian applications have been vetoed by the Russians. The trusteeship council, meanwhile, gave Italy a non-voting seat in the council last year when it was the administrator for Somalia.

3. Yugoslavia concluded the listing of her charges against the Soviet Union. Minister of State Milovan Djilas accused the Communist countries of applying military, economic and political pressure on Yugoslavia and told the assembly this endangered world peace. U.S. Delegate John Sherman Cooper in the special political committee, promised Djilas' speech as "detailed and factual and supported by the record of official documents."

Cooper, a former Kentucky senator, said if Russia really wanted peace, she could show it by easing the

Eight Feared Lost Off New England

Boston, Nov. 28 (AP)—Eight men were believed today to have perished in the stormy waters off New England.

Five were crewmen of a Gloucester dragger which struck a rock and split in two off Cuttyhunk, Mass., yesterday.

An unidentified crewman was reported washed overboard from the tanker Ohio southeast of Cape Cod.

Two Warwick, R. I. men were missing for more than 24 hours off Prudence Island, R. I., aboard an eight-foot boat equipped with a one and one-half horsepower motor.

Word of the Cuttyhunk tragedy came from William H. Shepperd,

The Huntsman...

Don't be trigger-happy like this "huntsman." Shooting at birds on telephone wires or using insulators for target practice can cut off important calls. That's why we ask hunters to be careful. (Southwestern Bell Telephone Company)

NECKLINE FUTURE

New York, Nov. 28 (AP)—Those "neckline necklines" some women affect in television shows will be around for a long time, fashion clothing designer Jacques Fath predicted last night.

He said the shoulder-to-shoulder neckline "is important" to TV women because the lower part of the body is usually not in the picture.

4. Iran accused Britain, in the national economic committee, of trying to strangle Iran's economy and create conditions which would let the British "continue their exploitation of a poverty-stricken people." The Iranians said Britain was trying to scare foreign investors away from Iran despite "generous" Iranian offers for more rapid payments of compensation for the nationalized Anglo-Iranian oil company properties.

The U.S. once more took the initiative from the Russians by the swift American approval yesterday of the proposal before the United Nations general assembly that the Soviet Union, France and Britain try to agree on disarmament in private talks. The discussions would be under the chairmanship of assembly President Luis Padilla Nervo of Mexico.

The U.S. move left it squarely up to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky to say whether his nation would participate. A "no" answer would be interpreted generally as unwillingness to go half-way in taking every proffered chance to restore world stability.

Vishinsky yesterday told newsmen he was thinking over the proposal, made by Pakistan, Iraq and Syria and supported by India.

Dispute Over Power Rages in Baxter

Mountain Home, Nov. 27 (AP)—The bidding power fight between the Arkansas Power and Light Co., and this Baxter county city gained momentum last night.

At a public meeting of the city council, C. Hamilton Moses, president of AP & L, and city officials, led by City Attorney Tom B. Timmon, hotly debated a proposal for a municipal power system.

The city administration, including the council, and the chamber of commerce is sponsoring a move to purchase the electrical distribution facilities of AP & L here for a city-owned power system. The city would get its power from the Bull Shoals and Norfolk dams.

Petitions calling for an election to decide the issue have been circulated, and proponents of the plan claim they have

Arkansas Girl Wins 4-H Award

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 28 (AP)—A Jackson County 4-H club member, Miss Pat K. ... as ... health ... at the National 4-H Congress ... it was announced ... will receive a $100 saving bond.

Miss K. ... is one of 25 Arkansas delegates to the Chicago meeting. She was Arkansas' state winner in the 4-H health improvement contest this year and is health chairman for the Jackson county group.

Moses told the hearing that the city should buy out AP & L if it is in your best interest. He then proceeded to show the city's best interests.

He said AP & L had spent $700,000 in this area since 1926, and had reduced rates five times since 1926. He said eight of the cities in Arkansas that own their electric systems charge higher rates than his firm collects here. In rebuttal, city officials said the city's own representative only half of the total number of Arkansas cities that own electrical systems.

Moses vigorously denied that AP & L had opposed construction of Bull Shoals and Norfolk dams, and denied that his firm was owned by electric bond and shares of New York. He said many AP & L forces believe that electric bond and shares controls the utility.

Timmon opened by calling Moses "the best showman in Arkansas," and charged that the AP & L president was trying to sell Mountain Home residents "a bill of goods."

To counteract Moses' claim that municipal systems charged higher rates than private utilities, Timmon presented Mayor Ross L. Lawhon of North Little Rock.

Lawhon said that North Little Rock had made a profit of $436,321 on its municipal system from January through October of this year.

Timmon also presented the congressional record of the testimony of AP & L vice President Cecil Lynch at a hearing on an appropriation for the construction of Bull Shoals and Norfolk Dams. He said the record showed that Lynch had opposed the appropriation. Timmon added that government records show that 97 per cent of AP & L's voting securities are held by electric bond and shares.
